Social Entrepreneurship Forum:
five people changing the world for the better

7:00 PM | September 23, 2010 | Alumni Auditorium |
Champlain College | Free Admission

HAL COLSTON

Neighborkeepers &
Good News Garage

Hal is a serial social entrepreneur focused on helping disadvantaged people get a real hand-up instead of a hand out. Good News Garage had provided inexpensive transportation solutions to over 3,000 families around New England and Neighborkeepers provides life mentoring services to the poor.

GARANG PETER DENG ('11)

New Sudan Jonglei
Orphans Fund

As an orphan child in war torn Sudan, Garang determined to build himself a better life and somehow he knew that education was the key. Now a senior accounting student at Champlain College, Garang founded the New Sudan Jonglei Orphans Fund, which finances the education of orphans in southern Sudan.

JILLANN RICHARDSON-ROHRSCHEIB

Community Capital of Vermont

After spending over 15 years doing micro lending and rural economic development in numerous third world countries, Jillann joined Community Capital of Vermont to help improve the access to capital for entrepreneurs in rural Vermont.

JOSH TETRICK

33needs.com

Josh's personal journey has taken him from the world of college football stardom to the street children of Nigeria. His latest social venture, 33needs.com, is a platform for bringing together investors and the many creative third world entrepreneurs who are starved for capital.

VERNEDA WHITE

Human Intonation

Inspired by her experience in Hurricane Katrina, Verneda founded Human Intonation, a premium unisex clothing brand dedicated to raising awareness for today's pertinent social and human rights issues.
